INNOVATION IN HEALTH CARE
ANNE BOYKIN, PHD, MN, RN

Tom McNicholas, owner and president of McNicholas & Associates, presented the Innovation in Health Care Award to Anne Boykin, PhD, MN, BSN, dean of the Christine E. Lynn School of Nursing at Florida Atlantic University.

After the ceremony, Nancy Hilton, chief nursing officer at St. Lucie Medical Center, congratulated Boykin. The two of them have worked together for several years implementing and researching Boykin's Nursing as Caring nursing theory at St. Lucie Medical Center.

The theory is also one of the theories on which the Professional Practice Model for Nursing at Martin Memorial Health Systems is based.

The theory has made Boykin, who plans to retire at the end of this school year, an innovator locally and internationally. Nursing as Caring is one of only a handful of nursing theories currently in use and is studied here and abroad. As one of the first to research the theory in practice at St. Lucie Medical Center, Hilton has presented her findings on the theory at an international conference.

In 2005, Christine E. Lynn School of Nursing at Florida Atlantic University, which Boykin heads, took another innovative step. The college, which offers several innovative advanced-practice nursing specialties, was one of the first schools to offer the specialty Clinical Nurse Leader. It made Treasure Coast hospitals some of the first in the country with these specialists on staff.
INNOVATION IN HEALTH CARE
ANNE BOYKIN, PHD, MN, RN

Tom McNicholas, owner and president of McNicholas & Associates, presented the Innovation in Health Care Award to Anne Boykin, PhD, MN, BSN, dean of the Christine E. Lynn School of Nursing at Florida Atlantic University.

After the ceremony, Nancy Hilton, chief nursing officer at St. Lucie Medical Center, congratulated Boykin. The two of them have worked together for several years implementing and researching Boykin's Nursing as Caring nursing theory at St. Lucie Medical Center.

The theory is also one of the theories on which the Professional Practice Model for Nursing at Martin Memorial Health Systems is based.

The theory has made Boykin, who plans to retire at the end of this school year, an innovator locally and internationally. Nursing as Caring is one of only a handful of nursing theories currently in use and is studied here and abroad. As one of the first to research the theory in practice at St. Lucie Medical Center, Hilton has presented her findings on the theory at an international conference.

In 2005, Christine E. Lynn School of Nursing at Florida Atlantic University, which Boykin heads, took another innovative step. The college, which offers several innovative advanced-practice nursing specialties, was one of the first schools to offer the specialty Clinical Nurse Leader. It made Treasure Coast hospitals some of the first in the country with these specialists on staff.